First Strike Environmental is introducing a new concept in project management. As the first in the industry to offer online access to the client's project, First Strike is blazing new trails in offering a more efficient method of monitoring project sites. At www.firststrikeenvironmental.com via the Client Log-In, each client is be able to monitor site conditions from photos and status update reports, view and print contact information, regulatory reports, the Critical Path and lab analysis'. They can also access external links to Associations and Regulatory Agencies that are involved and print billing and budget files. No longer do managers have to spend travel time going to and from sites or waiting for snail mail to gather information on projects.

While projects are password-protected, confidential and secure, the involved entities such as insurance agents, claim adjusters and Federal/state agencies will be able to view the appropriate job files on their own project site. This strengthens communication links and streamlines the business flow.

Ten out of eleven beta clients gave rave reviews at the introduction of the web features. "I have just one comment, WOW!" John Sallak, OTA. One reviewer gave suggestions for improvements but still agreed that the concept was a valuable tool for efficiency in project management.
